“SLUMDOG” CHILDREN IN MILLIONAIRE WORLD

The two child stars from the hit movie “Slumdog Millionaire” have attended the Oscars ceremony in Los Angeles. The two children, Rubina Ali and Azharuddin Ismail, actually live in the Mumbai slums where the movie was filmed. They are already getting many enquiries from India’s film studios about acting in Bollywood movies.

The movie tells the story of how a teenager from one of the poorest parts of India becomes a millionaire. Now, little Rubina and Azharuddin have done the same, for a weekend at least. They have swapped the poverty of their daily lives for the riches and glamour of the movie world’s biggest night.

“Slumdog Millionaire” director Danny Boyle said he was very excited for the two young stars. He said it had been fantastic that the pair rubbed shoulders with the stars on the famous red carpet. Boyle has already promised to fund all of the children's education. Nine-year-old Rubina said she couldn't wait to arrive in L.A. She told the reporters she wasn't scared and that she took lots of photos to show her friends in Mumbai.
